DISCLAIMER

Before you do anything in real estate, consult an attorney, accountant, and any other professionals you deem necessary. You can lose money in real estate. In these courses, the buyer has the understanding that I am not offering any legal advice, accounting advice, or any other advice. The system I use works for me; it may not work for you. I set up a system for buying and renting homes based on my research and experience, you must do your own research.

These courses are being sold to you, the buyer, with the understanding that by buying a course, you agree that it will be used by only you. Your right to use the course is nontransferable. You also agree that you will not copy or distribute any information inside these courses. You, the buyer, will not rent, lease, lend or loan any material in these courses to anyone.

Most of the information in these courses is based on rules, guidelines, and experience. But rules and guidelines may change at any time. It is your obligation to know the rules and to understand them. When you work out your strategy to purchase or rent a house, always check the rules and guidelines. Always have your information reviewed by an accountant, an attorney, and any other professional that is deemed necessary.

The author and distributor of these courses claim no liability for your actions. In no event will the author or distributor be liable to the purchaser for any amount over the purchase price of these materials.

The sales of all courses originate in the State of Delaware.
